

HOPSCOTCH, E8

Brick Lane's Hopscotch has a new head chef in the form of ex-Patty & Bun head of development, Luke Findlay. After time at restaurants such as Yotam Ottolenghi's Nopi and Tom Kerridge's Hand and Flowers, Luke brings his varied experiences to the table in a diverse menu. Highlights include smoked eel with rye toast; pit-roasted aubergine with tahini and pickles; and smoked goat bun with Urfa mayo and slaw.

BIG BREAKFAST

The perfect day starts with a hearty meal

TEMPLE AND SONS, EC2

This British grill produces all the classics, but also dishes such as Lake District onget steak with black pudding, Lyonnaise onions and fried Cornish chorizo. Hair of the dog options are also comprehensive, with the Bloody Mary using bacon-infused Ketel One vodka.

KEEPING THE EPICURE NOURISHED WITH THE SQUARE MILE'S LATEST LAUNCHES AND CULINARY CRAZES

CLOCKJACK CITY

Making the most of the current food delivery app craze, free-range rotisserie chicken brand Clockjack has launched a restaurant kitchen dedicated to delivery only, with no front-of-house operation. Based near Monument station, orders from within a two-mile radius placed with Clockjack or on Deliveroo can be delivered within half an hour. Coverage extends from the Square Mile, out to Islington, Clerkenwell, Bethnal Green, Whitechapel and Wapping. The kitchen delivery hub offers ethically reared, free-range rotisserie chicken on the bone, or in salads and wraps, alongside hearty sides and desserts. Portions aren't something to worry about, either: The City Magazine tried Clockjack for itself and struggled to get through the mountain of food delivered.
